Three words that define a good leader:
Vision, courage and care

What is the most rewarding moment of your career to date?

Every morning, when I come to work with the same intact passion for learning new things, teaching new people and overpassing new challenges as a team. I then know my "career" is a success.

And the most challenging moment of your career?

When I had to work in an isolated way on a confidential project, back from my fourth maternity. I missed the energy of a team and needed more time with my family. We are not machines. If you can afford it: take extended maternity breaks and only come back to work when you feel really ready for it.

Name one woman who inspires you and why?

Simone Weil, French Auschwitz survivor, politician and women's rights icon who passed away a few months ago. She looked like a girl (so beautiful at all ages), acted as a lady (in the toughest circumstances), thought like a "man" (to convince men) and worked like a boss to achieve her goals. What a life!

Why did you decide to attend #WFMX17?

There is so much to do to further empower women in Mexico and beyond. Let's join hands and see how, together, we can dream bigger and achieve higher!

What do you expect from Women's Forum Mexico 2017?

Insights, ideas, connections and actions.

What kind of leaders -or who- are you looking forward to meeting at #WFMX17?

Caring leaders; leaders who want to use their leading position and power to make an impact on the society and the world, not just on their bank account.

A book or a film on leadership that you would like to recommend to your fellow delegates?

A TED talk Are you a taker or a giver from Adam Grant: it added words to 20 years of feelings.

What else do you want delegates to know about you?

I am also a mother of four girls. They keep me on my toes on what leaders should do to make the world better. Seeing each of them developing into an independent citizen of the world is my biggest joy and pride.
