Three words that define a good leader:

Vision; strategic decision making; ability to enlist the hearts, minds and efforts of others

What is the most rewarding moment of your career to date? Every time a woman tells me how adopting the advice I share in my book or in a speech impacted her career, business and life.

And the most challenging moment of your career?

Researching and writing my book. I was breaking new ground both with my interviews and it was hard for me to write the book. I'm very glad I did not give up. The results have been totally worth the effort.

Name one woman who inspires you and why?

I am inspired every day by seeing women succeed in their careers and lives. Seeing their commitment to excel in each area of their life, never ceases to move me.

Why did you decide to attend #WFMX17? Globally, we are at a critical juncture to drive economic prosperity through the additional engagement of women at work and in leadership. Our ability or inability to do so will define the next era. #WFMX17 brings together men and women committed to this vision.

What do you expect from Women's Forum Mexico 2017? I would like to see business men and women make real commitments to intentionally advance women into leadership roles.

What kind of leaders -or who- are you looking forward to meeting at #WFMX17? I most look forward to engaging with men attending #WFMX17. For far too long we have not fully enlisted men in initiatives to advance women and to achieve gender parity.

A book or a film on leadership that you would like to recommend to your fellow delegates?

What else do you want delegates to know about you? I am most excited about my work to equip male managers and leaders to actively and intentionally recruit, retain and advance women. They want to be engaged and ready to make a difference.
